STORAHTELLING: SOCIAL JUSTICE SHABBAT
FRIDAY, JANUARY 15
7:30PM
Each year we come together on the Shabbat of Martin Luther King, Jr. weekend to celebrate our commitment to social justice. This past year our nation faced terror attacks, Islamophobia, gun violence, and so many other critical issues. And so we need to recommit ourselves to our social justice core values more than ever. With beautiful music, inspiring readings and a Storahtelling-style interpretation of the Torah portion, our traditions will help to shed light on the issues of our day as never before.

FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS
On one of the darkest nights of the year our sanctuary glowed with the lights from dozens of menorahs as over 100 people lit candles in celebration of Chanukah at our Chanukah Shabbat Service. A delicious dinner, a lively service (including a congo line of children led by Rabbi Goldsmith), bright lights, favorite songs and our annual Spinagogue game made this a night to remember.

SNAPSHOT
SOCIAL ACTION SUNDAY
Emanu-El, Rye Community Synagogue, KTI, and JCCH received a $4,000 grant this year to create Social Action Sundays for all of our teens. On November 22 over 60 teens came together to make blankets for Project Linus and care packages for Lone Soldiers in the Israeli Defense Forces.

GILDA’S CLUB
Our Youth Group hosted the arts and crafts room at the Gilda’s Club Noogiefest, providing a fun activity for youngsters and families dealing with cancer and/or loss.

FAMILY EDUCATION MORNING & MITZVAH MOMENT
Families worshipped, learned and performed mitzvot together.

ICON GUIDE

With myriad ways to engage at the synagogue, our icons make it easy to recognize those things that interest you.

REFLECT & ELEVATE
Find peace and inspiration from these worship, meditative, reflection-filled experiences that will elevate your mind and spirit.

MIX & MINGLE
Connect with others to find true joy. These social and cultural events create the space to gather together around fun, engaging and interesting topics and activities.

FAMILY TIME
Spend a few hours with the people you hold most dear. Our strongest link to Judaism is through our family. Refresh those bonds with your spouse, parents, children, and grandchildren to create memories that will endure for decades to come.

STEP-UP & GIVE BACK
Stand up for the values you espouse and give your time, energy, and resources to the community. There is no better way to express gratitude for the blessings in our lives.

SEEK & DISCOVER
Expand your mind. Find new ways to think about our world rooted in innovative perspectives on our ancient tradition.
Chanukah brought untold joy and celebration to Emanu-El this year. The glow of lights, the celebration of freedom, the rededication to our tradition, the sounds of children laughing, the smiles of parents “schepping nachah” (feeling pride) – all of it brought a sense of wholeness and contentment to those who gathered together for our festival of lights.

And yet, our celebrations of light took place under a looming shadow, a shadow that darkens our society and threatens our way of life, the values that we hold dear as Americans and as Jews. Millions of Americans now openly discuss excluding Muslims from civil society: forcing them to register, forbidding them from traveling to our shores, excluding them as refugees because of their religion. As a pulpit rabbi, I do not take a position on the candidacy of any one candidate. As a pulpit rabbi, I must speak out against rhetoric and proposals that threaten our way of life.

My grandparents had to register as Jews in Nazi Germany. My great-grandfather died in Cuba of a simple infection. Antibiotics in America would have saved him. But America refused him entry because of his religion. And now Muslims die in refugee camps and drown in oceans because the world will not accept them. Of all people on earth, we know what happens when a nation vilifies and excludes an entire group. If they will vilify one group, they will eventually vilify another. No one is safe. I am afraid of people who support anti-American policies that contradict our highest values. I am afraid of the millions of people who confuse the victims of militant Islamic extremism with its perpetrators.

This vile rhetoric springs from a toxic stew of fear and politics. The attacks in Paris and San Bernardino and around the world have done more to advance ISIS’s agenda than any attack in the Middle East. How? Their agenda has moved forward not from loss of life or violence, per se. Instead, they have stoked fear and the West has responded by questioning our own values of freedom, pluralism and openness. When we close borders, when we discriminate based on religion, when we turn away the “tired, the poor, the huddled masses yearning to be free,” when we do these things we help ISIS defeat the very values they profess to hate. And so they win.

The great Hasidic master, Rav Nachman of Bratzlav, taught “Kol haolam kulo, gesher tzar meod, v’haikar lo l’fached klal.” “The whole world is a very narrow bridge. The secret is not to be afraid.” He lived in a time when Jews knew fear day-to-day, a time when Cossacks destroyed villages, when Christian clerics accused Jews of using the blood of Christian children to make matzah, when broader society walled us off and attacked whenever they felt like it. Today we know security and safety and prosperity as never before. If Rabbi Nachman could live life without fear, than surely we can, too. If Rabbi Nachman could live according the Jewish values, than so can we.

Some politicians and groups take our fear and offer simplistic “solutions”. They make some people feel good. Yet they ultimately betray all that we stand for as Americans, all that we strive for as Reform Jews. If our ancestors had given in to fear, if they had given up their values when faced with threats, we would not be here today, we would have disappeared from the face of the earth. Like our ancestors, like the Maccabees of old, we must now stand up against fear and stand up for those values that define us. If we do not, then our people will fade, if we do not, than all that makes America great will vanish. Will we move toward a darkness that makes the heart tremble? Or, will we make the light shine brighter? To brighten our world we need only “not be afraid.”

“Kol haolam kulo, gesher tzar meod, v’haikar lo l’fached klal.”

- Rav Nachman

PIKUACH NEFESH
TO SAVE A LIFE & ORGAN DONATION

Saving a life serves as the highest principle in Jewish law and tradition. Indeed, we may transgress nearly any law in order to save a life. We find the Biblical rational for this principle in Leviticus 18:5 “You shall therefore keep my statutes and my rules; if a person does them, he shall live by them: I am the LORD.” In other words, we ought to “live” by the laws of the Torah, not die because of them.

The Talmud (Yoma 84b) elaborates that we should not hesitate to break the Sabbath in order to save a life or even to treat a sick person. The Talmud (Sanhedrin 74a) lists a few exceptions to this principle, things that tradition teaches Jews must not do even if their lives are in danger: idolatry, blasphemy, murder (self-defense and wartime killings are not considered murder), incest and adultery.

For Reform Jews one very practical application of this principle is organ donation. Organ donation would typically be considered a violation of the commandment to honor the body of a deceased person. But all Jewish authorities agree that the value of saving a life through organ trumps this other commandment. Thus, all Jews ought to register as organ donors.

To sign-up as an organ donor or to find out more about organ donation, please visit the New York State Department of Motor Vehicles Donate Life webpage at:

For me, the most exciting part of attending Biennial is taking the pulse of the Reform Movement today, and figuring out how I can do my part to embody the new directions the movement is taking. Once again, I have come home brimming with new ideas to implement!

Choosing carefully from hundreds of workshops, I was drawn mainly to those in the “Audacious Hospitality” track. This “Audacious Hospitality” initiative, introduced at the last Biennial, encourages congregations to open our doors. Now, two years later, changes in our culture are making us ever more aware of the need to welcome everyone who enters our synagogues, regardless of race, gender identity or disability. In this spirit, the URJ unanimously passed a resolution regarding the Reform Movement’s positive stand on transgender issues. An example of one of these issues is that as of last summer, our Reform Jewish camps are now able to accommodate transgender campers.

One of the most interesting workshops I attended, “Beyond Counting Heads,” addressed new ways of measuring the success of our programming, to keep up with the times. In the 1950’s the focus of the Reform movement was on our buildings: “If you build it, they will come.” In the 1980’s we shifted emphasis to programs, the success of which is largely measured by how many people show up. Nowadays, we are evolving from buildings and programs to people and relationships. Therefore, instead of “counting heads” (and seeing that there is enough seating and food, for example) we are now increasing our awareness of creating meaningful experiences that both deepen relationships and “strengthen the Jewish DNA” of our participants.

Actually, much of what we have been offering at the temple in recent years has been going in this direction; our Women’s Study Group is a great example of a vibrant and warm community that has developed through building authentic relationships within a joyous Jewish context. Another example is that you may have noticed congregants relating short personal stories at services, as introductions to prayers. These little “sacred stories” are culled from my Reflections workshops, in which we “reflect” on ordinary moments from our daily lives (see below). In sharing parts of ourselves with the community, we foster a greater sense of connection and meaning.

New ideas and perspectives gleaned from Biennial are invaluable in helping the rabbi and me - and our entire temple staff - to keep current and creative. The ideas that are born, the personal interactions, the abundance of resources, and the camaraderie of attending Biennial as a temple delegation are all very exciting for me. It is invigorating to come back and evolve what we do to be ever more aligned with a greater vision, and with serving the needs of all our congregants. The beauty of Reform Judaism is that it is always renewing itself. This is exactly what attending the Biennial does for those of us participate.

I am grateful to have the opportunity to attend every two years, and enthusiastically urge YOU to join our team in Boston in 2017!

Meredith Stone, Cantor

In this workshop we find out how our daily life experiences, observations and anecdotes can illuminate and give deeper meaning to our prayers. Through writing on various topics, learning about the themes of prayers, and sharing as a group, we will see prayer in a new light and strengthen connections to one another and our tradition.

MLK & JEWISH RESPONSIBILITY

“Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere.”
- Martin Luther King, Jr.

The Jewish community was very involved in the Civil Rights movement. Our history is one to be proud of. Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel and religious leaders marched for Civil Rights in the 1965 Selma Civil Rights March. Rabbi Heschel asked: “Who is a Jew? A person whose integrity decays when unmoved by the knowledge of wrong done to other people”. MLK and Heschel are role models for how we should respond to injustice. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr’s memory is celebrated because of his greatness.

This past year we saw the deaths of unarmed black men such as Michael Brown, Eric Garner, Tamir Rice. Their deaths confirm that much work is needed to have a just and equal society. Stereotypes and ignorance are at the core of hatred. As Jews who have suffered persecution we know that all lives matter and that we value Emet V’ Tzedek - truth & justice.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr’s most persistent and urgent question is, “What are you doing for others? For, an individual has not started living until he can rise above the narrow confines of his individualistic concerns to the broader concerns of all humanity.”

Our temple marks this date with a special MLK Storahtelling Social Justice Shabbat on Friday, January 15th at 7:30PM. The service will explore social justice issues of today through the lens of our heritage. Our Youth Group will volunteer with JTeen at Afya on Monday, January 18. This event started after the earthquake in Haiti and brings teens from JTeen, Harrison High School, synagogues & churches together to sort medical supplies. This is a day on not a day off for our teens.

We continue to be inspired by the work of Afya to bring medical care to people that do not have access. Afya has partnered with public health missions in 53 countries around the world but is particularly active in Haiti, where the foundation manages a network of rehabilitative medicine clinics.

May we continue to perform Tikun Olam-repair of the world.

This past November, Susan Amkraut and I had the privilege of attending the URJ Biennial in Orlando. Five thousand strong, clergy, educators, administrators, and lay leaders came together to learn, share, listen, and worship. Informative workshops, plenary sessions, networking meetings, and Shabbat services all reflected the current priorities, mission, and values of the Reform movement. The 2013 Pew Center’s “Portrait of American Jewry” reported that thirty-five percent of American Jews consider themselves Reform. In his opening plenary address, Rabbi Rick Jacobs, President of the URJ, emphasized the uniqueness of the Reform movement and its ability to blend ritual observance and text study with a public and private value system. “Just as we cannot build and sustain our Jewish community on ritual and study, neither can we build and sustain our Jewish identity solely on being good citizens of the world.”

Susan and I were eager participants in informative workshops covering topics ranging from strengthening synagogue life, to inclusion strategies, to social justice, to Jewish tradition and text. The sessions provided us with unparalleled learning opportunities as Board members, and I am confident that we developed skills which we will use in our roles as lay leaders at our temple. Among the many workshops I attended, a most interesting one was entitled, “Actualizing Audacious Hospitality through Adaptive Leadership”. Working in small groups, we discussed practices and developed tools to confront the challenges facing congregations as we all journey towards growing and transforming modern Jewish life.

At the final plenary, in his standing room only address, Vice President Joe Biden thanked the Reform Jewish community for leading the way on social justice issues, gun violence prevention, marriage equality, and more. “You didn’t just lobby me, you educated me.” Those words and his sentiment made be very proud to be a Reform Jew, and very happy to be a member of a congregation which is committed to fostering and strengthening Reform Jewish life.

URJ BIENNIAL 2017 - JOIN US!

The next URJ Biennial will take place December 6 - 10, 2017 in Boston, MA. Please speak with Rabbi Goldsmith if you are interested in attending.

Abbie Levitt, Temple Administrator
“Tzedak, Tzedak, Tzedak – Justice You Shall Pursue” (Deuteronomy 16:20) inspired Dr. Martin Luther King and is central to my identity as a Reform Jew. A prayer often read in translation after the Sh’ma begins with: “When Justice burns within us like a flaming fire…” has since my teenage years represented my obligation as a Reform Jew to make the world a better place.

I am proud to be part of a movement committed to...doing Tikkun Olam, making our world a better place for all.

As your Religious Educator, I am fortunate that I have many opportunities to practice my Jewish values and pass them on to the next generation. Last November at the URJ Biennial, I participated in the Tikkun Olam – Repairing our World track of classes and speakers, attending these workshops: “The Power of Mindsets,” “Beyond Bathroom Signs, Creating a Culture of Inclusion,” and a “Youth Social Action Symposium.” I was honored to vote as a delegate from Congregation Emanu-El of Westchester for the “Resolution on the Rights of Transgender and Gender Non-Conforming People” that was unanimously passed by all the members in attendance at the plenary session.

I am enthusiastic about acting on all that I learned and working with our congregants and our movement in the continuing struggle to bring equal rights and dignity to all of us who are created in God’s image.

Once again, with our Rabbinic Intern Chase Foster and chaperone Eric Abbot, I traveled with sixteen of our eighth and ninth graders to Washington, DC to participate in the L’Taken Political Action Weekend led by the Religious Action Center of Reform Judaism (RAC). They engaged in learning activities around crucial social justice issues, chose one and lobbied passionately on it in the offices of Senator Schumer and Congresswoman Lowey. Congresswoman Lowey was there to listen to our students urge her to support the Equality Act for LGBTQ persons and Equal Access to Abortion Coverage in Health Insurance Act and to respond affirmatively to them. Photos of our students and quotes from their lobbying presentations can be found below and on page 15.

The RAC hosted the NAACP, Dr. King and other Civil Rights leaders when they helped draft in their offices the language for the 1965 Voting Rights Act. As Reform Jews we marched with Dr. King in Selma and St. Augustine over 50 years ago and again with black leaders in Selma last summer. I am proud to be part of a movement committed to our Prophetic values, to acting on them to do Tikkun Olam, making our world a better place for all people.

Marcie Aiuvalasit, Religious Educator
Our 9th and 10th grade students traveled to Washington, D.C. this past December for the Religious Action Center of Reform Judaism’s L’Taken Program with nearly 2,000 other high school-aged students. Students studied public policy issues, explored the Jewish values surrounding these issues, and learned effective advocacy skills as they presented their positions on Capitol Hill to Congresswoman Nita Lowey and Senator Chuck Schumer. Below are some highlights of our weekend, along with thoughtful quotes from students.

“We get this backing [for the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities] from two examples from the Torah, the first of which comes from Leviticus, “you shall not insult the deaf or place a stumbling block before the blind.” This shows that the Torah states that the people should not make life harder for those with disabilities of all sorts. Passing the CRPD treaty will make life easier for those with disabilities and reflect the values of Reform Judaism.”
- Sam Glaser and Cole Wyman

“As young women in high school, we have a personal connection with the issue of reproductive rights. It is important to us that women have the right to choose what they can do with their bodies, because this affects us all negatively.”
- Sarah Birnbaum, Ari Daniels, Rebecca Daniels, and Shoshi Daniels

“Jewish tradition is clear on the treatment of refugees and immigrants. Our faith demands of us concern for the stranger in our midst.”
- Matthew Griff, Justin Groobins, Jimmy Hefter, and Reese Ptashnik

“Climate change caused by global warming is an issue that we place as a priority, as we are already seeing its negative effects. Luckily, there are bills pending in the House that you [Congresswoman Lowey] could support in order to better the environment and the well being of our children.”
- Ben Stein and Alex Kaplan

“Stem cell research is extremely important and we really hope that you [Senator Schumer] will co-sponsor legislation like the Stem Cell Research Advancement Act, which was introduced in the house in 2013.”
- Rose Baranowski

“Gun violence causes the deaths of almost 30,000 Americans every year. This horrifying statistic alone is unacceptable, not to mention the hundred billion dollars that are spent on the medical and social costs of these attacks, 80% of which is paid for by taxpayers. Financial loss, not to mention tragedy and death, can be prevented if background checks on people buying guns are more strict.”
- Lila Rutishauser
Introduce your kindergarten & pre-school aged children to Jewish life and celebration Congregation Emanu-El.

Our Pre-K and Kindergarten classes are a wonderful introduction to the Religious School experience. Each class focuses on a Jewish holiday with a fun-filled program including cooking, music, storytelling, and arts and crafts. Classes meet on Sunday mornings, and are open to the public. Bring friends!

PERFORMANCE OF THE OFF-BROADWAY HIT

A MODEST SUGGESTION

SATURDAY JANUARY 9

7:00PM

Special presentation of the Off-Broadway hit just for us!

Four businessmen meet in an anonymous conference room over a pad of paper and a box of donuts to discuss the next item on their agenda: whether the world is a better place with or without the Jews. Comedy ensues. As the four yes-men weigh the pros and cons together (and interview a couple of mensches along the way), A Modest Suggestion brings up some pretty tough questions: Why do racism and anti-Semitism exist? What does it mean to be Jewish? How does racism turn into violence? And do Jews eat bacon?

Cost: free for students and $20/adults. Refreshments served. RSVP to Jane at 914-967-4382 x 21 or jdubro@congregationemanuel.org.

YOUNG FAMILIES CUDDL UP SHABBAT WITH MATTY ROXX

FRIDAY, JANUARY 29

5:30PM

Let’s welcome Shabbat together with new friends, stories, and lots of dancing, giggling and wiggling to Matty Roxx’s awesome tunes! Afterwards, we will gather for arts and crafts and kid-friendly Shabbat dinner.

This program is geared toward families with children 6 months to 2nd grade (older siblings are always welcome). Feel free to bring friends, the program is free and open to the public.

RSVP to Jane at 914-967-4382 x 21 or jdubro@congregationemanuel.org.
