SCHOLAR-IN-RESIDENCE WEEKEND WITH AUTHOR DAVID LASKIN
INCLUDING CONGREGATIONAL MORNING OF LEARNING & DOING
AND MITZVAH DAY
FRIDAY, MAY 5 - SUNDAY, MAY 7

Stories matter a great deal in Judaism. Still, our ancient prophets taught that stories, ritual activity, and study are not enough: we need to act in the world. With this in mind we’ve combined our traditional Scholar-in-Residence Weekend with Mitzvah Day to create a holistic and inspiring Jewish experience for all our congregants, young and old and everyone in between. Please turn to pages 8 - 9 for a schedule of the weekend’s events. Sponsored by the Rabbi Daniel S. Wolk Scholar-in-Residence Fund.

THE ANNUAL CANTOR EARL ROGERS TRIBUTE SABBATH
WOMEN & WINE: VOICES FROM THE GOLDEN AGE OF SPAIN
AN EVENING OF SONGS IN JUDEO ESPANOL
FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 7:30PM

Our sanctuary will pulse with exciting Sephardic rhythms and melodies with songs sung in Ladino, or Judeo-Espagnol, the dialect of Sephardic Jews. The accomplished mezzo-soprano, Janice Meyerson, joins Cantor Stone in this fascinating program of songs dealing with love, loss and concerns of daily life. This rich treasure trove of folk music originating in Spain survives long after the Jews were cast out in 1492, and has been infused with the unique sounds and flavors of the lands in which Jews found themselves, from the Iberian Peninsula to North Africa and the Middle East. Bring extended family and friends to our temple, and enjoy!

SPRING BENEFIT 2017 HONORING EMANU-EL PRIZE RECIPIENTS
MARCIE AIUVALASIT AND JOHN CARTON
APRIL 1
BOARD BUZZ

Dear Congregants,

Believe it or not, this will be my last time writing to you as Board President. It has been an honor to serve these last 3 years. And don’t worry…I’m not going anywhere. I will remain on the board for the next two years as the Immediate Past President with pleasure.

Our 2017 Spring Benefit was a great success. Thanks to all who planned, contributed, attended and supported this amazing event. In our beautiful Susan Schweitzer Family Learning Center, we ate, drank, laughed, and honored Marcie Aiuvalasit and John Carton.

Through everyone’s generosity we raised over $85,000 to support our Operating Budget. This helps close the gap in our expenses that dues, fees and other donation do not cover.

Now onto a Capital Campaign update. We have pledges of just over $1.3 million. We are on our way to our goal of $2.4 million.

The installation of our new HVAC is moving along and if all goes as planned it will be up and running before the warm weather sets in.

The Annual Meeting is Thursday June 1st at 7:00pm. Please join us at 6:30pm for our Annual Congregant Art Salon opening. You will have the opportunity to meet Darren Fogel, our new Board President, hear an update on the state of the congregation, and vote on the 2017-2018 Board of Trustees.

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, I wish you a safe and healthy summer.

Susan Amkraut, President
I actually felt embarrassed as we headed toward the museum exit. It was my first afternoon with the Kurdish family our congregation is helping to resettle in Westchester. I brought them to the Neuberger museum at SUNY Purchase to show off a great cultural institution and college campus in Westchester County. A campus construction project detracted from the beauty outside. Inside, it seemed, a good part of the collection lay under black shrouds. So much for a great culture institution. It was embarrassing.

“When will the exhibit upstairs open?” I politely asked the museum receptionist on the way out.

“It is open, sir,” he patiently explained. “We have many pieces in our collection created by immigrants. The artist took those pieces, put them on display, and then covered them with black cloth. It shows what would be missing from our collection – from the art of America – if those immigrants had not been allowed into our country.”

How poignant. How perfect. What would these new residents of America add to our nation’s collection? How would they build upon the work of all the immigrants who came before them?

I had picked them up late that morning at their apartment in White Plains. “I heard that you haven’t had pizza,” I said incredulously. “You’re in New York! Come on, we’re going to Sal’s.” On the drive to Mamaroneck we talked about the million moving parts of settling in a new country. The father described his job search. In Iraq he translated for the US Army, the UN, and NGOs. He wants to do translation work here also. The son described the very funny little old lady teaching his GED class and how he’d like to work in a video game store. The daughter has already picked up a lot of English from her ESL classes as she clearly understood everything we said, laughing at jokes, and easily answering questions about her classes.

“I’ve noticed,” the father said once we had ordered and sat down, “that many bathrooms in America say ‘mens’. That doesn’t make any sense. They either need an apostrophe or it should just say ‘men’.” In 39 years of going to public bathrooms I had never noticed. But with fresh eyes he saw our grammatical shortcomings right away.

“Besides bathroom signs, what else has surprised you about America? What is different than you expected?” All three agreed that they met more kindness than they ever could have expected. From people on the street in downtown White Plains to the members of our congregation who are helping them settle in, they cannot believe how nice everyone is. “I thought it would be like you see on TV shows about New York City,” the son said, “but everyone is so friendly.”

With all the stress of immigration. With all the pressure to find work. With the inevitable challenges of a new land and language and culture, simple kindness has made the biggest impression on our nation’s newest residents.

Later in the day I sat with the father sipping tea and talking about his experience as an interpreter in Iraq, the threats to his family, life as a refugee in Turkey, and the joy they felt when the US consulate gave them the visas to emigrate. I shared with him how our congregation came to be involved with his family. The desire to do something to help the refugees of the world that concretized in a partnership with the refugee advocacy experts at HIAS to help a family resettle in Westchester. “The Jews,” I explained to him, “spent most of the last 2,000 years as refugees. The least we can do is to help the refugees of today.”

Bridging a gulf of culture and background, over a cup of tea, we talked about what might be for his family...

CANTOR’S MESSAGE

CURATING THE INPUT OF YOUR LIFE

“Modeh ani l’faneca melech chai vekayam, she-be-chezarta bi nishmati b’chemla, raba emunatecha.”

“I offer thanks to You, living and eternal God, for You have mercifully restored my soul within me…”

These are the first words we are supposed to utter every morning - while still lying in bed. Our first conscious moments are spent thanking God for the gift of life. With this gift, each new day brings so much potential. Our challenge is in how we use each day; the choice is up to us.

Of course it may not always feel like we have much choice, with our long lists of things to get done. Yet, our days also include discretionary moments, which can all too easily get filled up with so many distractions.

Speaking of time, my 40-minute commute home from temple often flies by as I listen to a variety of programs on National Public Radio, from interviews to stories, music and more. I never know what I might hear; there’s always something different. I enjoy the stimulation of learning new things. It’s enriching.

Recently, in an interview with a young artist, Claire Rosen, she used a phrase that struck me:

“It is amazing if you can take control of CURATING THE INPUT OF YOUR LIFE… it’s very easy to get sucked into a very busy, monotonous work life, and when you get home and you want to unwind, all you want to do is sit down and watch Netflix. But I think one should try to fight that — to actively curate your life so that you are having interesting experiences in the world.”

Curate! What a fresh and poetic way to look at making wise, conscious choices of how we spend our days. Modeh ani! Thank you God for giving me life and the ability to make choices.

When many of us were younger, we didn’t have much “input,” like the countless options for entertainment and social media that are available today. Before cable TV, we had only three decent stations, and kids had to wait a year for the annual airing of The Wizard of Oz (which I skipped because I was too scared of the Wicked Witch and those terrifying flying monkeys!).

Without today’s dizzying, ubiquitous array of on-screen temptations, kids used to spend their time differently. As an “indoor” child, before taking up formal music instruction, which required daily practice, I spent time making things from paper, tin foil, clay, paint, basically whatever I could find around the house. Occasionally I got bored, and had to come up with new ways to entertain myself. I am grateful for these early opportunities to be creative.

Our challenge is in how we use each day; the choice is up to us.

At this stage of my life, after spending the better part of the past several decades immersed in career and child rearing, I find myself gravitating toward my childhood love for art and crafts. Participants in our annual Women’s Study Group retreats know that this passion wends its way into many of our activities.

While I do admit to an occasional mini-series binge, Claire Rosen suggests carving out time for creativity, as an antidote to being a couch potato.

“I don’t know that it has to be the sort of traditional formula of going to a museum. Maybe you take up archery. Maybe you are doing pottery but you’re really a banker. Maybe you’re going to see a talk on a field that has nothing to do with what you do. Or traveling. But the important thing is that you are seeking out experiences… that you are experimenting and exploring and figuring out what it is that you actually like. You may come across something that you never knew you were interested in.”

At the end of the day, can we go to bed knowing we’ve “curated” that day’s input? That we’ve made a conscious choice to meet a friend face to face for coffee instead of online, or to read a novel in the evening instead of checking email again.

Modeh ani l’faneca. Thank you God for giving us the gift of life, and awakening us to a new day of possibility.

RITUAL CORNER: MI SHEBEIRACH FOR HEALING

At the entrance to the sanctuary on Friday evenings is a piece of paper on which congregants and guests can list the names of people in need of healing of body, mind, or spirit. The clergy read this list aloud and invite people to privately think of others in need of healing before reciting a מִ שְׁבָרָכָה, a prayer for healing.

The practice of a prayer for healing on Shabbat arose because of a quirk of Jewish liturgy. During weekday prayers, a prayer for healing is included in the series of supplications during the section of the service known as the Amida or Shemoneh Esrei. But on Shabbat, when we act as if the world is perfect for one day, we do not recite these supplications. Nevertheless, people still wished to pray for healing of their loved ones who were ill. A multi-generation debate ensued among rabbis from all over the Jewish world.

In the end, a short prayer for healing was added into the Shabbat liturgy. This fell out of favor among early Reform congregations for many years but was brought back, thanks in large part, to the popularity of a tune composed by the late Debbie Friedman. This coincided with a greatly expanded theological sense of the word “healing” which allowed our scientifically oriented minds to accept a prayer for healing that may not include a supernatural cure.

Whatever our personal theologies, saying a prayer for a loved one in need of healing helps to affirm our hopes and assuage our fears in the context of a caring and supportive congregation.

STUDENT RABBI’S MESSAGE

MEMORY AND WHOLENESS

Only a couple of weeks ago we were preparing for Passover – the holiday of our redemption, rejoicing in freedom and singing of God’s great strength as God parts the Red Sea. What a contrast there is between Passover and Yom HaShoah, Holocaust Remembrance day, when we might read the words of Eli Wisel: “Where is God? This is where—hanging here from this gallows.”

The proximity of these two holidays is instructive. Like the remembrance of the Exodus, the remembrance of the Holocaust demands that every Jew consider himself or herself as if he or she had personally lived in Europe during the 1930s. We were made to be strangers in a land we thought was home. From this experience we say “never again”, and accept our call to care for the stranger in our midst. To fight against xenophobia and persecution wherever it exists. As at our Passover seders, a child, Anne Frank, questions, “Who has inflicted this upon us? Who has made us Jews different from all other people? Who has allowed us to suffer so terribly up till now?”

Maḥ nishtana ha-lilah bā-zeh mi kōl ha-leilot?

It is striking too that 73% of American Jews say that being Jewish means remembering the Holocaust and 70% of American Jews say that they attend a Passover seder (Pew Report, 2013). Passover is one of the oldest holidays, while Yom Hashoah is one of our newest observances. There is something essentially Jewish about remembering and connecting with our family and those who came before us.

On Yom HaShoah, we confront our broken world, our despair and the overwhelmingly impossible task of fixing any of it. Rabbi Irving Greenberg offers a post-Holocaust theology that just as the world is incomplete, so is faith and truth, and even God. He says he knows that, “God exists in that we can sense God’s absence.” Similarly, because faith and truth can be broken, we know that they are also whole. Rav Nachman of Bratzlav said, “there is no heart so whole as a broken heart,” and Greenberg adds, that after the Holocaust, “there is no truth so whole as a broken truth.”

In confronting the brokenness that Yom HaShoah sets before us, we also acknowledge the existence of wholeness in our lives. The ultimate message of this holiday is that it is our project to work towards completeness by remembering profound brokenness. Because the world is so broken, we know that it can be whole. The work of tikkun olam, of repairing the world, calls us to do what we can to fix, yes, and it also demands that we imagine what wholeness could be.

Events happen around us. Events happen to us. Events make up our lives. The stories that we tell about these events give our lives meaning. Author David Laskin illustrates this truth through the profound story of his family in his moving book, The Family: Three Journeys into the Heart of the Twentieth Century.

With programs on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Laskin will help us to see our Jewish stories and our families’ stories in the context of the 20th century and how they continue to impact us in the 21st century. Our Scholar-in-Residence weekend will conclude Sunday morning with learning programs for all congregants and our Religious School families, followed by our annual congregation-wide Mitzvah Day.

Scholar-in-Residence Shabbat with David Laskin
Friday, May 5, 7:30pm

Author David Laskin brings the Jewish history of the 20th century to life in his riveting book The Family: Three Journeys into the Heart of the Twentieth Century.

In David’s own words: Born in Brooklyn and raised in Great Neck, New York, I grew up hearing stories that my immigrant Jewish grandparents told about the “old country” (Russia) that they left at the turn of the last century. How I wish I had recorded and video-taped every one of their memories.

“The unspeakable tragedies and improbable triumphs of the European Jewish diaspora in the 20th century have been told many times but rarely quite so compellingly as in David Laskin’s ‘The Family.’ Mr. Laskin’s chronicle could have been written in tears—of torment and scarce joy—and it is at once anguishing and inspiring... ‘The Family’ is a very emotional book.”
— Edward Kosner, Wall Street Journal

“[A] moving account of the history of [Laskin’s] family during the 20th century...demands to be read...a metaphor of sorts for the 20th century, one in which incredible good fortune was granted to some and incomprehensible agony to others....the book of this particular family stands out for the extremes of joy and sorrow contained within it.”
—Jonathan Yardley, The Washington Post

Torah Study with Scholar-in-Residence David Laskin
Saturday, May 6, 9:00am

An opportunity for more intimate learning with our Scholar-in-Residence. David Laskin will bring his family history expertise to our study and help illuminate the family secrets of our sacred texts.
In this culminating morning we will come together as a congregation to learn and to do, to immerse ourselves in Jewish ideas and then go out to make the world a better place. Using our minds, we will deepen our connection with our history, our stories. Using our hands, we will deepen our connection with our community and with one another. Don’t miss this important and fun day! See RSVP information below.

9:30 - 11:00am: Following a brief service in the sanctuary we’ll engage in learning through story (see activities below). RSVP to Marcie at maiuvalasit@congregationemanuel.org.

OUR STORIES/OUR LEGACIES

“God made man because God loves stories.”
- Rabbi Nachman of Bratzlev

Our Scholar-in-Resident David Laskin will be with us during the weekend of Friday, May 5 - Sunday, May 7.

At the Friday evening service David Laskin will “tell his story”. On Saturday morning he will lead our Torah study. During the Sunday morning family education workshop, he will help us “tell our stories”.

Author David Laskin’s book, The Family: Three Journeys Into the Heart of the Twentieth Century, traces the roots of the author’s Jewish ancestors. The story begins with the birth of Laskin’s great-great-grandfather in Russia. It traces how the family separated into three branches, one immigrating to America, eventually founding the Maidenform Bra Company. Another branch went to what was then Palestine and participated as pioneers in the birth of Israel. The third branch, seventeen members, unfortunately remained in Europe and was killed during the Holocaust. This meticulously researched and beautifully written book chronicles an amazing family whose experiences span the history of the 20th century. It is an epic story of triumph and tragedy that everyone can relate to and enjoy.

“The pulse of history beats in every family” writes Laskin, and there is no exception here. There were essentially three options for Jews in the twentieth century: 1) immigrate to America (if they could) or to another country (and hope for the best), 2) go to Israel as a pioneer, 3) stay where they were born, in Europe.

In writing his story, Laskin hopes that we will understand what our ancestors had to go through, especially the pioneers in Israel, their huge and inspiring idealism that spurred them to make sacrifices. “My hope is to inspire readers to research their own families’ roots,” he says.

There’s a saying in the Jewish tradition that the shortest distance between a human and God is through a story. Our role is to live our lives, in a way that enables our stories to be told in the way that we aspire for them to be told. Our responsibility is to keep the stories, the legacies, of those who came before us, telling them as they should be told and teaching their valuable lessons.

Join us the weekend of May 5 - 7 to experience how you can share your stories with the generations who will come after you, leaving your own unique legacy.

WHAT'S WITH THE ז’ל OR ז’il AFTER A NAME?!

Have you ever looked a list of Jewish names and seen some listed with the suffix ז’ל or ז”ל?

If you’ve wondered what it means, you’re not alone. The letters stand for זכרוןו לברכה (zichrono livracha). This translates to “May his/her memory be a blessing”. It is sometimes also mis-translated as “May his/her memory be for a blessing.” However you translate it, it indicates that the person has passed away. There is something beautiful about using this particular designation to indicate that someone has died. Instead of saying “deceased” or “passed away”, this phrase does not explicitly say that the person has died. Instead, with these letters, we look beyond death to the hope that the memory of this person will bring blessings to all who knew him/her - even to those who simply read his/her name without ever having known him/her.

This is one more affirmation of the centrality of life and blessing to our Jewish tradition.

HAPPY 30TH ANNIVERSARY!

This May I am celebrating the 30th anniversary of my accepting the position of Religious Educator at Congregation Emanu-El of Westchester. At our amazing benefit on April 1, Rabbi Wolk and I shared our recollections of the beginning of a wonderful relationship between this community and me. I was so honored to be introduced by Rabbi Goldsmith and to be presented with the Emanu-El prize by Rabbi Wolk. As I said that night, “I am so appreciative of this recognition for what I have contributed to this temple and to the Jewish community because of all that Judaism and Congregation Emanu-El have given to me.”

Members of my family and friends who came to share this honor with me had such a wonderful time! They raved about our beautiful synagogue, the warmth of our congregants, the spirit of the evening and the obvious caring and admiration that my temple family has for me. I was not surprised by their reaction. Saturday night was a rare gift surpassed only by the thirty years of support, encouragement, friendship and Jewish life that I have enjoyed as your Religious Educator.

I have always seen my role as a vital partner in the Jewish journeys of my school families and fellow congregants. Our temple’s mission statement says that “we are committed to continuously fostering Reform Jewish life among our congregants… through the pillars of Learning and Studying, Worshipping and Reflecting and Instilling Jewish Values.” Watching our youngest students light Shabbat candles, say Kiddush, and enjoy challah each Sunday, making potato latkas with third and fourth graders, moderating the fifth grade family Prophet for President Election, observing our Mi Ani sixth graders working with groups of children at the Don Bosco Center after school program and sharing the Hineini year with our Bar/Bat Mitzvah students fills me with optimism for the future of Reform Judaism.

As many of you have heard me say, these wonderful experiences are just the beginning – my joy multiplies when I welcome our teens to our Monday Night Program. I revel in their questioning, enthusiasm and growth as they use Jewish ethics and values to find their own sense of self and relationship with the world around them.

My fun continues when I am able to work with adult congregants through our Women’s Study Group, Book Clubs, Engaging Aging, Social Action and worship. My family and I have made many deep connections with so many congregants. You have supported me and encouraged me and now you have honored me. How lucky I am.

Saturday, April 1 was an amazing night – one that I will never forget – thank you!

EASY AS 1-2-3: EMANU-EL'S
CONGREGANT PORTAL

Did you know that you could manage your family information and make payments or donations online through our secure online member portal?

Why should you use it?
Your member portal is an easy and quick way to securely update your family’s emails, phone numbers and addresses; add or change yahrzeit information on file; and you can view billing activity, pay bills or make donations through your account.

Do you have to use your online member portal?
The simple answer is “no”. The online member portal has been created to make your life easier, however, if you would prefer not to use the member portal, that is perfectly okay.

Where do you access your member portal account?
If you are not already using the portal, the office will send you a link for logging in. You can use your desktop, laptop, tablet or handheld device to go to the temple homepage and log in from there.
